

Initial evaluation will be carried out for the teacher to know the starting point of the students and their previous knowledge on the matter. To do so, the teacher will develop a KAHOOT with questions about nature reserves and biospheres, general culture about north african issues and general notions about biodiversity and endangered species.

This activity will not be a valuable item per se, as it has no real value on the contents and abilities to develop throughout the proposal. It is just an informative activity to set the starting point and previous knowledge of students both for their self-awareness and for the teacher's understanding.

This KAHOOT will be carried out during the first session of developmental activities: The hippopotamus (A1).
